THE President, the Vice President, every member of the Cabinet, excepting Secretary Meyer, members of the Supreme Court, have many other officials and residents as can possibly leave town have gone. The White House, Cabinet homes, and others are closed, although merely for the week-end, as some of the officials will return to Washington early in the week. Some have gone so far from home that they cannot return each week, but the Secretary of State, the Postmaster General, and the Attorney General will be here again several times before going off for a long outing.

The President and his family will leave Monday on the Mayflower for a cruise up the coast to Maine, pay a visit to Mrs. Taft's brother-in-law and sister, Prof. and Mrs. More, in their summer home, and probably stop to pay a call on several old friends in that vicinity.

The eyes of the social world turn tomorrow from Beverly, the social center of this country this summer, to Atlantic City, where the exhibition of air flights is to be seen. The season is hardly on at Newport and Bar Harbor, and the great fashionable hotels on the coast and in the mountains have not yet shown much gaiety. The delay in all this is largely due to the twentieth century craze of automobilism. Whole families spend their summers in cars, practically, never stopping for a long time in any one place. More and more is this done by the travelers to Europe. Nothing like the automobile craze has ever been known. Many good people, who have barely a shelter over their heads, own a touring car. It is repeated that many have really gone so far as to mortgage their unencumbered homes to buy one, and many of these have come to grief. Others dismiss their servants, do their own housework, and stay as much as possible in the open air in their autos, taking their meals where they happen to be, at a road tavern or a neighboring city hotel.

It all sounds well and very attractive, but where is it leading the masses of the people? It has injured the European exodus for the summer season, but scores of those who formerly fled to Europe with the first warm breath now stay at home and motor through the hills and mountains of our own country, and incidentally become acquainted with sections hitherto unknown to them. The auto craze among fashionables is far worse than the bicycle craze with the masses, and costs much more. However, it has been of wonderful benefit to the suburbs, and really dealers incidentally, and in consequence city people are becoming suburbanites at a rapid rate. Washington is particularly benefited in this way, and suburban life is growing more and more popular in the beautiful country surrounding the Nation's Capital.

The gossip concerning the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins has all been revived by her visit abroad with her mother this summer, and the reported visits of the Duke to Toblach, where she and her mother are staying. A friend of Miss Elkins in this country is authority for the statement that the yacht said to be awaiting the pleasure of Mrs. and Miss Elkins at Lepanto, Greece, will carry a party, including Mrs. and Miss Elkins, the Duke, with some other friends, for a cruise in the Mediterranean waters. It would surprise no one if this marriage, threatened in the newspapers so long, would actually take place abroad before Miss Elkins returns to this country. It is well known to the members of her family and to her intimate friends that the only thing lacking is Miss Elkins' consent, which the Duke has never obtained.

Only a remnant of the diplomatic corps remains in the city for the next two months. The Mexican Ambassador is leaving this week for Magnolia Beach, accompanied by his two sons. The newly appointed Turkish Ambassador is still in town, and has made no plans yet for his departure. Henri Martin, secretary of the Swiss Legation and charge d'affaires during the Minister's absence, will leave some time this week for Newport, where he will establish the legation for the remainder of the summer. Mr. Martin has not taken any part in social affairs this spring, nor will he for some time yet, owing to the death of his mother in Switzerland some months ago. The Spanish Minister, Senor Riano, will leave this week also and join Mme. de Riano, who is in New York making short visits with friends near by that city. They will then go North, either to the Adirondacks or the North Shore, which they will determine after making visits there. The Chinese Minister and Mme. Chang and their family of daughters and their son and daughter-in-law have gone to Nyack-on-the-Hudson to stay until October. They spent some time in New York looking for a suitable place for a long stay, and this ending opportunity suited them better than anything else.

Her tulle veil was fastened with a bandeau of pearls, and her only ornament was an antique cross of diamonds, which has been a family relic for generations. The bride procession was led by four little girls dressed in white and carrying daisy chains. The maid of honor, Miss Agnes Blackwell, was gown in pale blue flowered organdie, over mesaline, and wore a black picture hat. She carried cerise poppies tied with tulle. Mr. Wilson is a leader among the younger members of the bar, and is a graduate of Cornell and Columbia universities. The marriage of the young couple was a quiet one on account of the recent death of Mr. Wilson, Jr., being attended by only a small party of relatives and close friends.
